

The mammograms showed no signs of breast cancer

No signs of breast cancer were found on the mammograms taken of your breasts

BreastScreen Norway invites all women in Norway aged 50 to 69 to breast cancer screening every two years. If you are in this age group, you will receive a new invitation in two years.

Women over the age of 70 are no longer included in BreastScreen Norway, but they should still watch for recent changes in their breasts and contact their doctor if needed.

Mammograms do not reveal all changes in the breasts. Breast cancer can also be detected between examinations. If you notice any changes, please contact your doctor, who may refer you to a breast center. This applies even if you recently had a mammogram.

More information on BreastScreen Norway can be found online: krefregisteret.no/mammografi

Yours truly,

Solveig Hofvind,
Head of BreastScreen Norway